

TURN OUT THE STARS

Lyric by Gene Lees

Music by Bill Evans

As Played on Bill Evans at Town Hall

Figure 10—Piano Solo

Bill Evans performed this solo piece as part of a three-part requiem in honor of his father. Evans provides an amazing breadth of emotion in his performance: poignancy, love, tenderness, reflection, anger, and sorrow. At first, I didn't understand his frenetic approach to the third section of the piece but, as I listened, I realized that I was hearing a true artistic outpouring by a man in grief.

In the first section of "Turn Out the Stars," Evans uses the "three-handed" technique discussed previously. He also utilizes chord outlining in the left hand that is found in much of the Romantic era piano music by composers such as Brahms and Chopin.

In the second section, we hear a left hand that comes out of the stride tradition. Most of the voicings in this section are typical of an earlier era during which "full-sounding" voicings such as 10ths were common. Evans alternates between fast and slow sections in much the same way that a classical composer might construct movements in a sonata.

The second slow section leads to a very difficult double-time section. It is interesting to note that he uses an almost uninterrupted series of triplets and sixteenth notes. As with the second section, Evans uses a left-hand style that is stride-like.

Perhaps the most striking part of "Turn Out the Stars" occurs in the last measure. The choice of a simple C# minor chord (with no extensions or alterations) is a touching contrast to the lush harmonies we hear up to that point.
